Worship Leaders:
Bryan Peterson & Keith Hulen

This early Christ For The Nations Worship recording features Bryan Peterson & Keith Hulen leading worship, capturing the deeply spontaneous dynamic that defined CFNI in its formative years. From the spontaneous singing in the spirit, to the active, demonstrative participation of the congregation, every moment reflects a worship culture that was quite raw and unpretentious.

There were no overdubs, no click tracks, and often, the musical arrangements were ad hoc, spontaneous or lightly constructed to allow for flow rather than the type of structure expected in a performance. To some, it may feel primitive or even naive. But for those involved, the purpose was simple: the exaltation of, and interaction with, the living God.

This is the sound of praise and worship from the 1980s as it emerged from charismatic centers like Christ For The Nations Institute, birthing a movement that would go on to shape congregational worship around the world. These earliest recordings were not commercial products. The earliest of which had no cover art, track listings, or formal credits. They were copied and shared from person to person, traveling from church to church, spreading organically without marketing or name recognition.

The goal was never performance, but presence; to capture the sound of praise and worship in its most sincere form, and to offer it as a model for those hungry for a deeper, more authentic connection with God.
